

HEMANT CHAWLA

"Leadership for the 21st Century", March 31, 2008

"Your cover story succinctly proves that there is no dearth of leadership for the 21st century. What is required is just a platform."

VIJAY DANDIWALA, on e-mail

The Guiding Lights

Napoleon Hill in his book Law of Success wrote, "It is only in military service where men freely sacrifice their lives for a faith. Thus, when I say leadership, I mean military leadership" ("Leadership for the 21st Century", March 31). I could not find many people from the military at the Conclave. You had invited a motley crowd that was neither interesting nor inspirational. Nobody talked of anything substantial about leadership affecting the aam admi.
M.N.S. THAMPI,
Thiruvananthapuram

INDIA TODAY deserves rich accolades for bringing together so many great minds on a single platform. The Conclave shall motivate many to work for making the world a better place to live in.
VIRENDRA KUMAR TANGRI,
Dehradun

The world needs leaders endowed with an uncanny vision, goodwill and courage to confront the challenges it faces. This is especially true for India where many of the problems have been aggravated by years of indifferent governance and votebank politics.
S.C. KAPOOR, Noida

What makes the speeches of the delegates—especially those of Bill Clinton and Al Gore—stand apart is the fact that they chose to look beyond the narrow confines of their country's borders and reached out and strove to improve the lot of mankind in general.
NALINI VIJAYARAGHAVAN,
Thiruvananthapuram

Your coverage of the INDIA TODAY Conclave was so extensive that it made me wonder if other than the Tibetan unrest, nothing newsworthy happened nationally or internationally for the entire week.

APARNA PAL, Delhi

I do not think the leadership for the 21st century is confined only to those who addressed the Conclave. Bollywood actors and cricketers are no doubt popular entertainers, but they cannot be considered the leaders of the 21st century.
A. SRIKANTIAH, Bangalore

In his speech, how come Advani, who otherwise never misses punch lines, did not talk about HQ (headquarters: 10 Janpath) when talking about IQ and EQ (emotional quotient)?
Y.N.I. ANAND, Mysore

How come Yasin Malik was invited to speak at the Conclave? He is responsible for the death of several innocent people. He talks about solving the Kashmir problem. He should know that the problem exists in the minds of the Kashmiri Muslims, not in the Valley. Malik should welcome Asif Zardari's idea and let peace prevail.

SUBHASH GUPTA, Jammu

Kanimozhi Karunanidhi's reference to caste Hindus was in bad taste. It exposed the DMK's bias against a particular caste. While every sensible person condemns untouchability, the DMK MP must not think that her party is the lone saviour of the Dalits and the downtrodden.
S.V. SRINIVASAN, Bangalore

The Crime of Silence

Both the international community and the United Nations have remained mute spectators to the brazen human rights violations going on in Tibet ("Olympic Hurdle", March 31). It is unfortunate that the Chinese can perpetrate international crimes and still get away with it.
BICHU MUTTATHARA, Pune