

MISS-UNDERSTOOD

With an acting career that is eminently forgettable, Tanushree Dutta is attempting new stunts to stay in the news. After accusing Horn Ok Pleasss co-star Nana Patekar of "misbehaviour", Dutta not only refused to shoot for the film, she also filed a complaint with the Cine and tv Artistes Association demanding compensation for damage to property and reputation. Patekar, on the other hand, has dismissed the actor's charges. "I feel repulsed even talking about this. She is young enough to be my daughter," he says. Furious with her conduct, producer Abdul Samee Siddiqui who is planning to sue her, says, "It was highly unprofessional on her part." Another drama queen in the making?

SHANKAR

Son Shine

Guess who stole the show at the Red brigade's 19th congress in Coimbatore? Sixteen-year-old Nandan Mani Ratnam, a Class 12 student and son of filmmaker Mani Ratnam, who gleefully ran errands while insisting he wasn't a star. "I am just another volunteer. I am here to serve the party." While releasing his first treatise, Contours of Leninism, Ratnam junior said: "It is Marxism which has the answers to the problems of the poor." A right start, isn't it?

Kyunki She's Back

Less than a year after she walked out of Kyunki Saas Bhi Kabhi Bahu Thi, only to be replaced by Gautami Kapoor, Smriti Irani makes a grand comeback on the show as Tulsi. "Kyunki is irreplaceable in my life," said Irani, who launched her own production house, Ugraya, after her exit from the show. After a spate of not-so-successful serials, she's back in the Balaji fold. For producer Ekta Kapoor, it was "heartening to bring Smriti back as Tulsi". Another twist in the sob, oops, soap opera.

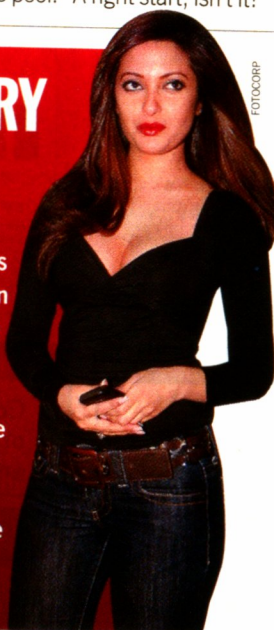

BHASKAR PAUL

SIBLING REVELRY

Creating a new benchmark in Bollywood, sisters Riya (right) and Raima Sen are all set to play reel life siblings, something no real life sisters have done before. The duo will star in Vicky Chopra's Seasons Greetings, a romantic comedy centring around new year's eve. "They share a close bond that suits their characters in the film as well," he says. Not disclosing much, Chopra says that the movie has different tracks, which culminate in a new year's bash. A new beginning in Bollywood, it seems.

FOTOCORP

FOTOCORP

Delicious Fresh-baked taste.
In Cookies.

Also available in Pattana, S. Pattana