

CONTRIBUTING IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF GREAT INDIA

Kunwar Shekhar Vijendra, Pro-Chancellor, Shobhit University, speaks about contribution in the development of great India.

Who do you feel is the greatest Indian?

To name one person, the greatest, will not justify the glorious history of our country. We cannot of course, deny or underestimate the great historical achievements and contribution of individuals.

What is the vision working behind the University?

The University is developing with a blend of Indian traditions and international outlook. On 15th August 2007 we committed to ourselves to become a world class premier University in 1000 days, to educate leaders who will fashion a humane and just world. We all are working in that direction.

As a University, how you are contributing in the development of Great India?

As a University, we are committed to empower all sections of society and rural areas of our nation through education. The country is growing fast, there is a great need for academic and professional enhancement to suit the young minds. The University has identified niche areas like Computer Engineering, Information Technology, Communication Engineering, Bio-Informatics, Bio-Medical Engineering, Biotechnology, Pharmacy, Mass Communication & Management. In all these areas the University is offering advanced programmes, developed in close association with the industry. We do not want to be a part of any rat race, we want to enjoy the relay race where employment waits for our students.

What other significant role your organization is playing in the development of rural areas?

We want to replace the word success with progress, as individual success is not going to contribute much in the progress of the nation. Maximum of us hail from villages, but once succeed, we forget about the progress of our roots, our native places. If the roots remain weak how we can expect the tree to survive.

Through our hospital, educational institutes and other initiatives in rural areas, especially at Gangoh, a small town in western UP, we are giving our humble contribution to the making of an empowered healthy and educated nation.

Any message for the young students from your side?

I would like to quote one of the best teachers of our time, Prof. APJ Abdul Kalam to the young students;

"Without your involvement you can't succeed, with your involvement you can't fail."

And here lies the secret of becoming the greatest too.
