

INDIA'S Best COLLEGES

New winners power themselves into the toppers' list even as leaders guard their turf while some yield to arch rivals

■ By Raj Chengappa

Excellence," author and educationist John W. Gardner once wrote, "is doing ordinary things extraordinarily well." Take Shri Ram College of Commerce (SRCC) in Delhi that like 18,000-odd colleges in India does the ordinary thing in terms of imparting a stream of education. Yet ever since INDIA TODAY's survey of academic excellence was instituted 12 years ago, SRCC has never been toppled from the coveted first rank in its stream. If it remains best of the best in its field even in 2008, it is because the college is not content to rest on its laurels. Its principal P.C. Jain makes it a point to tour the best commerce colleges across the country to see if he could pick up something from them and incorporate it in his college. SRCC is constantly upgrading its facilities adding even a Rs 23-crore stadium to change its label of being a "nerds only" college.
