33 AND 34, ENTREPRENEURS (NEW)

EMERGING BULLS

BECAUSE in just eight years, the young irrians have made Indiabulls the largest and most valuable online and retail brokerage firm in the country, commanding a market valuation of Rs 43,000 crore this year, a turnover of over Rs 1,200 crore in 2007 and a projected profit of Rs 1,400 crore this year. Because they are now venturing into telecom, power, retail, multiplexes, mutual funds and private equity. Because L.N. Mittal, who invested about Rs 4 crore in the company in 2000, has made more than 300 times his investment. Because some of their largest shareholders are the biggest financial institutions of the world. Because at 33 and 34, they are worth Rs 6,000 crore and Rs 3,000 crore, respectively.

BIG BUY: Pyramid Retail for Rs 200 crore and two business jets—a Bombardier Challenger 604 and Citation Bravo in the last one year.

PERSONAL QUIRKS: While Sameer hates eating “khaana” with a knife and fork, Rajiv is uncomfortable attending social dos.

THEIR NAMES FIGURE IN EVERY MAJOR FINANCIAL DEAL CURRENTLY.

R. CHANDRASHEKHAR
43, PRESIDENT, FICCI (NEW)

CHANGING TRACKS

BECAUSE his voice carries weight in both business and politics. Because the new president of FICCI is also an independent Rajya Sabha MP from Karnataka. Because his word counts in Karnataka's complex politics, with his equal access to all three parties—JD(S), the Congress and BJP. Because he owns Asianet, the fastest-growing media company in south India. Because through his $1.6 billion venture firm Jupiter Capital, he has staked money in businesses of the future—regional media, logistics, transport infrastructure, aviation infrastructure, technology and hospitality.

IS PROUD OF: His 90-plus-per cent attendance in Parliament. Always wears the Tricolour on his lapel.
