

THE ELEVATED ZONE

The sixth edition of the Power List is the richest, second oldest and most dominated by men

Money talks, wealth overwhelms. In this year's Power List, half of the 50 highest and mightiest are industrialists, businessmen and executives, the highest yet. Of the 15 new entrants in the list, nine are entrepreneurs, among them DLF Group's K.P. Singh, the world's richest real estate developer, and G.M. Rao of the GMR Group—corresponding to the construction boom and the airport privatisation drive. The entry of BCCI Vice-president Lalit Modi and the young captain M.S. Dhoni is only to be expected in the year of the Indian Premier League, a tournament that will change the game of cricket forever. While the banking and financial sectors find representation, actors and filmmakers continue to hold the nation's gaze. As politicians find themselves out, former president Abdul Kalam and technocrat E. Sreedharan up the intelligence quotient. Sadly, the number of women on this year's list is at an all-time low of four.
