

ADBHUTA

The wonderful, breathtaking and mysterious...

With the new trend of integrated townships setting in, luxurious living is no more a distant dream for home buyers.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Picture this — A town where you have a luxurious two/three/four bedroom apartment amidst green surroundings; lavish sports facilities, clubs with swimming pools, gyms, party hall, your work place and many more are close to your apartment. You even have banks, hospitals and schools at walking distance from your home. In addition, there is provision for round-the-clock security, water and electricity supply. Seems to be an ideal town, existent in dreams only; is it not?

Well, what if we say that these dream-towns are for real? The concept of integrated townships has brought them to reality. Integrated townships are becoming a hit among residential property developers as buyers are now asking for more than a home. With changing lifestyles, the priorities of the new breed of property buyers are also changing. Now owning a home in a prime locality is not enough. People want various facilities like schools, hospitals, shopping malls, health spa and many more around the vicinity for an ultimate living experience. The realty developers are fast coming up with these integrated townships to encash on the scenario.

Integrated townships have a distinction of having a boundary wall with an impressive main gate, guarded by security personnel round-the-clock. Another salient feature of these townships is their pleasant typography. There are plenty of open green spaces and well maintained parks. Townships are meticulously planned with designated spaces for recreation clubs, malls, educational institutions, hospitals and other public utility areas as per the by-laws of the state. No need to mention the availability of basic amenities like water and electric supply, sewage and drainage system, well maintained and connected roads.

Our metros have already overgrown. And getting a huge tract of land is next to impossible. Therefore, tier II cities have become the target area for developers for establishing integrated townships. More and more people are aspiring for apartments in these townships and developers are leaving no stone unturned to come up with world-class townships. The competition has further been fuelled by foreign investors. FDI is coming up big time into the establishment of these townships.

As the realtors have no dearth of funds to structure dream townships, buyers have a plethora of options to choose from and make their dream of living a luxurious life come true.
