

DANCE LIKE A STAR

She may be way off the sensational status but what's wrong with aspiring big? Going the Shakira way, actor Riya Sen is taking lessons in belly dancing. Already done with getting the chest and hip movements right, Sen is working on breathing right for those perfect moves. Training under the guidance of Brazilian teacher, Veronica Simas D'Souza Rosas, Sen says: "I think belly dancing is very sensuous. After several friends suggested I take it up, and having found the right teacher, I have got in groove seriously." We hope a certain Mr Rushdie will appreciate the effort.

Model Role

After tracks on Carol Gracias' wardrobe malfunction and Gitanjali Nagpal's riches-to-rags story, Madhur Bhandarkar's Fashion is likely to include Alicia Raut's story—a model's life after marriage. "If the film has glimpses into the lives of models, they might want to depict my story, of a woman's return to the ramp after marriage," says the 26-year-old model. Thumbs up, we say.

Alien Beauty

Shedding her girl-next-door image and 10 kg of weight, Ayesha Takia is set to give Jadoo, the endearing alien from Koi Mil Gaya, tough competition. The actor is playing a girl from Venus in Milap Zaveri-directed Jaane Kahan Se Aayi Hai. "The film has lots of love, laughter and emotions. And it's a fun team which makes the experience all the more exciting," says the 22-year-old. She needs all the excitement she can get after a string of slow movies.

YOGEN SHAH

With Maharashtra Chief Minister Vilasrao Deshmukh's son Amit tying the knot with model-turned-actor Aditi Pratap Ghorpade, the first family of the state has acquired one more histrionic talent. Bangalore-bred Ghorpade, last seen in soap opera Saat Phere, confesses to being a movie buff, foodie and yoga enthusiast. And with brother-in-law Riteish Deshmukh's Bollywood connections, films could well be her next big move. This is one happy family production.
