HOT SHOT

BECAUSE he is the only Indian who can stop traffic in Berlin. Because with a forthcoming television show, an IPL cricket team, a thriving production house, and two of last year's biggest hits—Chak De! India and Om Shanti Om—under his belt, he is everywhere at once. Because when he sprouted a six pack, Indian men hit the treadmill with a vengeance. Because his friends cut across several alpha people groups, whether it is Reliance Industries Chairman Mukesh Ambani or Congress General Secretary Rahul Gandhi. Because every Indian is privy to everything about him, including how much time he spends in the bathroom. Because in one song of Om Shanti Om, he hosted almost the entire industry including his famed rivals, the Bachchans. Because his work ethic is matched only by his endless energy. Because he is not content with just being a movie star.

IS OBSESSIVE ABOUT: Installing a biometric security system in his already fortress-like home.

CURRENTLY READING: The fine print in the IPL prospectus. When he tires of reading it in bed, he switches to re-reading Ayn Rand's The Fountainhead.

BIGGEST DISCOVERY: "That glass is a liquid, because a window pane is thicker at the bottom and thinner at the top."

LOVES TO HANG OUT WITH: His 10-year-old son Aryan and his friends, in his den at Mannat.
