

film festival Spanish Delights

DELHI Whether it's an adolescent girl's journey into life through her art, the story of a political prisoner in 1974 Spain, or a comedy of two friends who discover that their girlfriends are in love with each other, India reads itself for a taste of Spanish cinema. On March 6, the city gets set to usher in a four-day Spanish film festival at the Indian Habitat Centre. Presented by Teamwork Productions, the festival is a result of extensive collaboration between the Ministry of Culture of Spain, Casa de la India, Embassy of Spain, and the Directorate of Film Festivals.

This is the third time that the festival is coming to India and will be travelling to three cities—Delhi, Mumbai and Thiruvananth-

INTERNATIONAL FLAVOUR: A still from the movie Fados hapuram. It will showcase a number of films and will also host a talk by award-winning director Carlos Saura, whose film Fados is being screened.

A major attraction for any avid movie-goer will be the screening of the award-winning Spanish fantasy film El Laberinto Del Fauno (Pan's Labyrinth). Written and directed by Mexican filmmaker Guillermo del Toro, the film is set in the Spanish Civil War and has won many awards like the BAFTA and the Academy Awards in 2006. A number of actors and directors will attend the festival as delegates. In Delhi from March 6-9, in Thiruvananthapuram from March 6-13, in Mumbai from March 11-15.

by Bushra Ahmed

recommendations Forgotten Tales

MUMBAI In Outside In! A Tale of Three Cities, photographer Pablo Bartholomew presents an insider view of life in Delhi, Mumbai and Kolkata, as it used to be three decades ago. The collection is a visual diary of the photographer's life—including old girlfriends, father, mother, and even a self-portrait. Bartholomew's photographs are a part of The Photograph: Painted, Posed and of the Moment, an exhibition by the National Gallery of Modern Art. Other works at the show include photographs by Henri Cartier-Bresson, Umrao Singh Sher-Gil, Nony Singh and Dayanita Singh. On from March 6.

by Aditi Pal

VISUAL DIARY: Pablo's work titled Nommie_bina

BODY AND SOUL: Menon's untitled work

DELHI Dimpy Menon's exhibition titled Spirit of Life captures the intricate, acrobatic and graceful movements of the human body. The artist imbues her sculptures with a rare sensitivity, revealing her uniqueness in handling the entire process of sculpting—from clay to bronze. At India Habitat Centre from March 8 to 15.

music reviews Pure Tone

Worldwide Records
Rs 155

BANSURI: THE INDIAN FLUTE

The sound of music comes more naturally when played on the flute. This magic has been captured by many—from Lord Krishna to the Pied Piper of Hamelin. Ronu Majumdar in his latest album Bansuri: The Indian Flute has interpreted various themes. He uses raga Mangal Bhairav to explore and define the meditative morning hour. In Fun fare, Ravindra Rajbhatt's rhythm arrangement is innovative, while in My woman, he brings out the romanticism by using raga Tilak Kamod. Majumdar touches the emotive chords with his well-composed musical score. This is the music to soothe and rejuvenate one's soul.

Silk Road

SACRED MUSIC OF INDIA
Indian religious music is fast catching the imagination of music companies. And the reason for this is its earthy and spiritual quality. The album is a compilation of live recording of the World Festival of Sacred Music—a global event that is a mix of all genres, Carnatic, Hindustani and folk. Kabir's Chalna hai dur musafir has an impeccable folk touch, while Baithe hari radha by Pandit Sukhdev Chaturvedi is simple and touching. O re pagla amar by Kartik Das Baul is a rich tapestry of sounds. Don't miss the Tibet memories by Nawang Khechog. Carnatic chants by S. Rajagopalan are just pure and simple melodies. A captivating album.

by S. Sahaya Ranjit