

Ordinary People. Extraordinary Service.

"The initiative was really sparked off by the 60 years of Indian independence and the desire to do something which we feel different; something which we felt will be much more enduring."
— Rajdeep Sardesai

"Cricket has been fortunate to get the affection of the people of India, but there are so many Indians who are in other sports, want to get inspired by other sports, who have role models there." — Sunil Gavaskar

"There are very few of us who put aside our own goals and think about others; and this ability to care for other people, their requirements or their needs is really special."
— Aamir Khan

"When we applaud them and when we honour them, we really say that we have a civilized society." — Shabana Azmi

"This is a movement that inspires hundreds of thousands of people in great India to raise the bar and achieve even more and together let us build a partnership so that we can encourage them."
— Mukesh Dhirubhai Ambani

"Each one of these achievers has left a huge impact on thousands of men and women and has transformed life by perseverance, passion for a cause." — Nita Ambani
