

IN HEAVEN

RAKESH SHRESTHA

As far as beauty queen credentials go, Sonal Chauhan has a Miss World Tourism title under her belt, but her chances in Bollywood are being wagered by none other than the Mahesh Bhatt camp. Chauhan, who has replaced Esha Deol to make her big-screen debut opposite Emraan Hashmi in Jannat, has already impressed Bhatt. "Sonal is a frail, pretty girl with a lot of depth. She also has an unusual edge because she's from Agra and can speak and emote well in Hindi," he says of his new discovery. Now let's see whether she goes the Kangana Ranaut or Udit Goswami way.

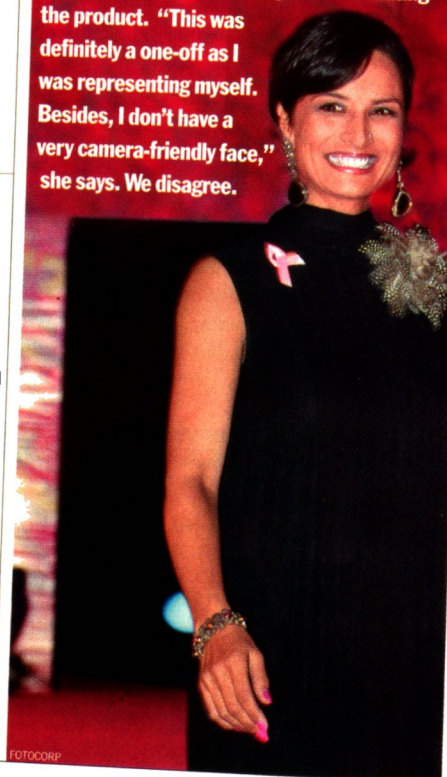

Rustic Note

Punjabi folk singer Charanjeet, a.k.a. CJ, might be inspired by Indian icons like Lata Mangeshkar and Mohammed Rafi, but his music sure is travelling far and wide. CJ has sung three songs for John Jeffcoat's independent film Outsourced. "It was pure luck that the music director B.C. Smith called me to the studio. I wrote a few lines and sang the song Chale chalo," he says. From rural Punjab to global glory—quite a musical move.

Tress Pass

Her husband's a film whiz and she prefers to let her scissors do the talking. But Farhan Akhtar's wife Adhuna, 41, recently stepped in front of the camera to advocate the benefits of an anti-ageing cream. The hair-stylist modelled for the cream only after evaluating the product. "This was definitely a one-off as I was representing myself. Besides, I don't have a very camera-friendly face," she says. We disagree.

FOTOCORP

GOING PUBLIC

Public relations personnel might have protested the adverse portrayal of their profession in Laga Chunari Mein Daag, but former beauty queen Sayali Bhagat is now all set to play one in her next film Good Luck, directed by Aaditya Datt. "I'm playing the role of a short-tempered PRO who turns into an easy-going person," says Bhagat. And with rumours of her alleged link-up with co-actor Aryaman Ramsay doing the rounds, looks like her PR machinery is also working over-time. All publicity is good publicity, eh?
