

LT Overseas Ltd.

A Legacy of Excellence

It all began in the year 1965 in a small shed in village Bhikiwind (Amritsar) with the inception of LT Overseas Ltd. Founded by Shri Raghunath Arora, the group came into being with humble beginnings and traditional values. And as destiny would have it, the group soon grew in both scale and operations.

As time ambled away, the changing group dynamics kept on adding new feats to their credit and new figures to their balance sheets. Just two years later LT Overseas Ltd. clocked over Rs.30 million by exporting Basmati Rice across the world. Soon, the company added another laurel to its list by becoming a public limited entity in the year 1994.

Grain sector formalised by the Ministry of Food Processing.

The legend called Daawat

The Packaged food grain segment was in its infancy, when LT Overseas foresaw a new trend developing back home. At the core of this frenzy were the working women. Those who had multiple roles to play. A professional at work. A concerned homemaker. Forever worried about not being able to provide good wholesome nutrition to the family.

Lack of time compounded with increased disposable incomes created a crying demand that had to be addressed. And LT Overseas Ltd. answered the call with 'Daawat'. A high quality branded Basmati Rice.

The group has posted a meteoric 30-fold rise in the company's turnover over the years. Today, total export revenues stand at Rs. 4965.78 million.

While in the domestic market, the brand Daawat has attained an iconic status amongst millions of households countrywide.

Today the brand enjoys a leading position in all major domestic markets across the country.

Coming years saw a phenomenal 30-fold rise in the company's turnover. Today, our group export total revenues stand at Rs. 4965.78 million.

A Culture of People

LT Overseas Ltd. finds its strength in astute leadership of its promoters and directors, who over the years have nurtured and guided the group ahead.

The founder promoter director of LT Overseas Ltd., Vijay Kumar Arora, who also chairs as the Vice President of All India Rice Exporters Association, joined the family business in the year 1978 and has since steered the group to newer heights. An alumnus of Administrative Staff College, Hyderabad, he was also at the helm as Co-Chairman of Agro Processing Committee constituted by the PHD Chamber of Commerce as well as the Task force on Food

Hygienically packed that required no tiresome cleaning before cooking.

The product became an instant success all over India. Soon, Daawat was welcomed into the Indian kitchens as a preferred Basmati that the lady of the house was proud to serve to her guests. It was only a matter of time before Daawat attained an iconic status amongst millions of households countrywide.

Today the brand enjoys a leading position in all major domestic markets across the country. Daawat envisages promising times ahead as convenience foods sector is witnessing a significant shift.

A continuing code of quality
