Eight years ago, Indiabulls was just a glimmer in the eye of three young IIT Delhi grads. Today, it's a real-estate-to-financial-services conglomerate that's worth Rs. 29,000 crore on the stock markets. Now they are eyeing telecom, power, and banking. How did Sameer Gehlaut, Rajiv Rattan, and Saurabh Mittal create one of India's hottest companies in double-quick time? Is Indiabulls' foundation strong enough to support its forays into newer businesses?
