

DANCE WITH ME

Now that the boys from Bollywood have successfully (some not so successfully) crossed over to television, it was only a matter of time before the girls followed suit. After Shilpa Shetty judged Jhalak Dikha Jaa and gave her nod to Bigg Boss, Sushmita Sen is letting her guard down. The out-of-bounds actor, who's not had a release for a while, will soon be putting up the scorecard on a new reality show, Ek Khiladi Ek Haseena, alongside former cricketer Wasim Akram. Actors will be paired with sportspersons and both will have to shake a leg for Sen's attention. The question is, will she score?

Giving politics a miss, Neha Thackeray, 22, Shiv Sena Chief Bal Thackeray's eldest granddaughter, has chosen to shine elsewhere. The jewellery designer recently opened her boutique. "I did a gemology course and then worked with Neelam Kothari for a year," she says. The fortnight-old store has been since teeming with politicians and filmi folk. Thanks to the family's contacts, at least customers won't be Neha's problems.

Crossing Over

Iranian by birth, she has been modelling worldwide but has chosen India to become famous. Mahsa, 24, came to Mumbai just three months ago and has already been signed for ASA production's Purple Lake. "I have always loved Bollywood. I would watch all the films and my favourite is Karan Arjun," says Mahsa, who is currently finishing her assignments abroad and can't wait to don the greasepaint.

When Dronavalli Harika, 17, won the women's International Master title in 2003, few believed this chess champion would get so far. But after 24 medals, the most recent being the under-20 World Junior Chess Championship, she is aiming higher. And though she has been chosen for the Arjuna Award, Harika won't be able to receive it because she's off to Russia, China and then Germany for different championships. "My goal now is to win the Grandmaster title next year," she says. This one's making all the right moves.
