

music festival

Starry Saga

CHENNAI Bharat Sangeet Utsav 2007 promises to woo rasikas with concerts by well-known classical artistes from across the country. The utsav is the brainchild of Carnatica, a music group founded by young vocalists Sowmya and Shashikiran with technological expertise from Ramanathan Iyer. Their aim is to "preserve, promote and popularise traditional Indian music blended with technological methods among a global audience".

In its third edition, the nine-day musical extravaganza kickstarts on November 1 at the Narada Gana Sabha with a nadaswaram performance by Shri Kothanda-Raman and party. Classical vocalist T.M. Krishna will ring in the event with an inaugural concert. To add a dash of variety, the festival is sprinkled with an eclectic mix of music-related events.

There's a Sangeeta Upanyasam, a musical narrative by Vishakha Hari on November 2. The next day, Dr Sriram Parasuram will present a symposium on voice culture and singing styles.

The utsav will also play host to performances by artistes like Ashwini Bhide Deshpande (November 2), P. Unnikrishnan (November 3), Kalaapini Komkali and Aruna Sairam (November 4), Pandit Vishwa Mohan Bhatt (November 5), Nithyashree Mahadevan and Pandit Shivkumar Sharma (November 6), to name just a few. On November 11, Subhashree Thanikachalam will bring to the audience Ragamalika, a selection of choicest vintage film songs.

The valedictory function on the same day will have the release of Rare Padams, an album by Alamelu Mani and Kalyani Sarma, a tribute to musical doyen Sangita Kalanidhi T. Brinda. The launch will be followed by Sham-e-ghazal, featuring a recital by versatile singer Hariharan.

Entry to all the concerts is free and unreserved seats are available on a first-come-first-serve basis.

by Akhila Krishnamurthy

IN CONCERT: Deshpande (left) and Sairam will perform with a host of other renowned musicians

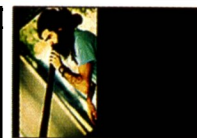

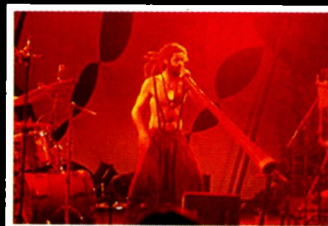

GIRESH GV

music

Dance of Joy

DELHI The old adage goes, "music knows no boundaries". Dad X music, in association with Cobra Club Nights, presents Olivetree Dance from Portugal on October 27. Olivetree is a trio with strong live energy, that plays a fusion of Latin, Jazz and Afro-Brazilian styles full of ancient sounds with contemporary rhythms which create vibrating and fresh organic dance music. In the menu is Dad X music's Sattyananda who will play electro-classical music accompanied by Ajay Prasanna on flute, Parveen Sethi on percussion and Sudhir Gautam on santoor. And for some foot-tapping dance music, S.O.N.R (Dad X Music) will present progressive rhythmic numbers. The musical evening is supported by Abstract Illusions, paintings by Trishna Singh. At Lodi, The Garden Restaurant.

FUSED: Olivetree mixes ancient sounds with new art exhibition

Fresh Talent

DELHI Resonating Metaphors is an attempt to showcase the talent of young and upcoming artists. The exhibition will feature 42 paintings and sculptures of 27 artists, of which the works of 10 women artists stand out for both form and content. The exhibits featured are remarkable in their exploration of capturing metaphors and turning

An exhibit at Metaphors them into manifestations of realities. The form and content chosen by the artists is novel as they discover newer paths to present the expressions of their aspirations. From October 27 to November 2. At Lalit Kala Akademi.