STATESCAN: KERALA

Last Sacrament Comes to Haunt
On the day the Chinese Communist Party decided to break the great wall between the church and the party, the comrades back in Kerala decided to take just the opposite route. The running feud between the Catholic church and the ruling Left Democratic Front led by CPI(M) on a host of issues, threatens to spill on to the streets over the issue of last sacrament of comrade Mathai Chacko, writes Special Correspondent M.G. Radhakrishnan.

WEB FEATURE: MOTOR RALLY

Getting High on Rough Rides

Not everyone longs for smooth roads and comfortable rides. Surprising as it may sound, some get their adrenaline pumping with potholes, dirt-tracks and rough rides. We are talking about the rally drivers here. Though rallying in India goes back almost 50 years, it's still to become a successful sport, writes Correspondent Swati Mathur.

STATESCAN: UTTAR PRADESH

Payback Time

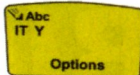

That the state is the hotbed of vendetta politics has ceased to surprise. When in power, Mulayam Singh had stalled BSP supremo Mayawati's dream project—Ambedkar Sthal. The tables have been turned. At least eight of Mulayam's pet projects are now caught up in a political logjam, reports Assistant Editor Subhash Mishra.
