

HIP MOVEMENT

It takes a superwoman to make a dent in the male-dominated world of hip-hop and rap. And Hard Kaur a.k.a. Taran Kaur Dhillon, the first Brit-Asian female rapper, has done just that. No wonder the 28-year-old's first solo album is called Supa Woman. Fresh from the success of her song Move your body, featured in Johnny Gaddaar, Kaur says, "I am proud of this album and believe it will cater to everyone." Rap it up, girl.

Young Old-timer

She romanced the much older Himesh Reshammiya in Aap Ka Suroor. Now Hannasikaa Motwani, 17, is all set to match steps with Govinda in choreographer-turned-director Ganesh Acharya's Money Hai To Honey Hai. While Acharya insists that Motwani fits the character of a tv actor, it looks like the teenager is making the older lot feel young again. Or is it just for the money, honey?

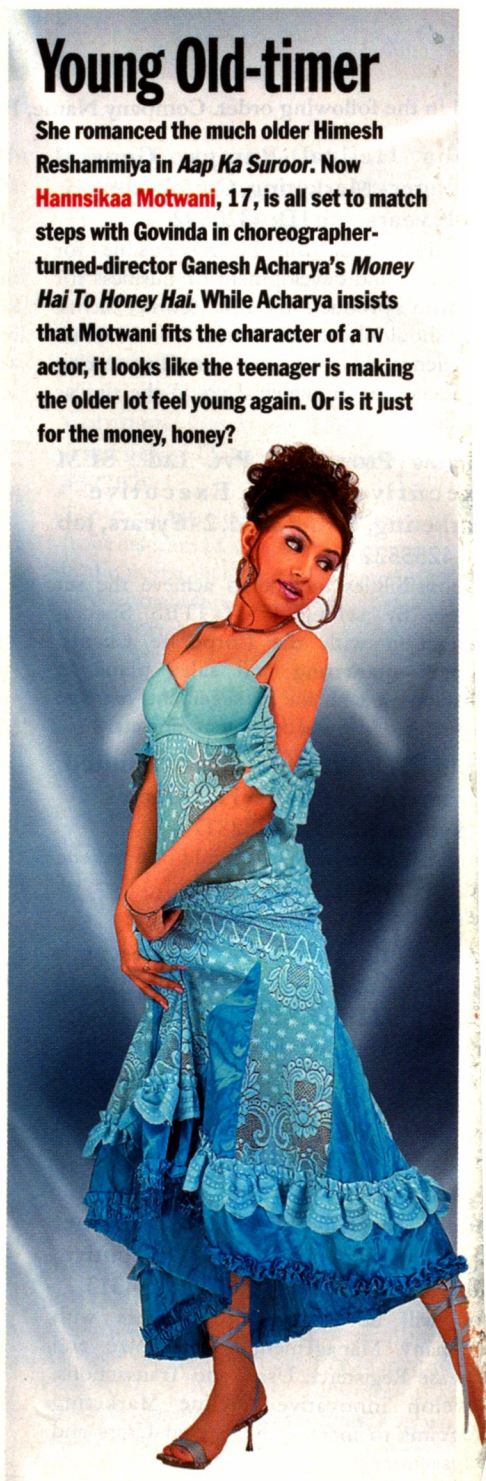

Game for Dance

Karishma Tanna's negative role in Ek Ladki Anjaani Si might have won her appreciation, but the 23-year-old is more interested in dance moves. Tanna will wear her dancing shoes for Nach Baliye 3 and launch Talaash-e-Baliye, a four-city hunt for a dance partner, ousting wild card entry Juhi Parmar. "Karishma and her partner will not participate in the competition but will only perform at the grand finale," clarifies Prem Kamath, v-p, marketing and communication, Star India. Dance drama, anyone?

TOUR DE FORCE

One of Pakistan's best live acts is ready to rock India. The Mekaal Hasan Band announced its arrival with a concert in Mumbai and launched its album Sampooran. Formed in 2000 by Mekaal Hasan, the band is in talks for a tour of the country. "This is a huge market for us," says 34-year-old Hasan, who also plays bass as guest artist for rock band Junoon. Waiting in the wings is the band's second album Andolan, replete with "high-energy sound". A musical treat, indeed.

This Diwali set every PATAKA on fire.
