

NOT READY TO WEAR

Bollywood beauties Malaika Arora Khan and Esha Deol may have turned down offers to walk the ramp in a two-piece for the Ms Bikini India contest, but actor Neetu Chandra promises to add a dash of glamour to the event. The Garam Masala star has been roped in for a racy dance sequence at the contest, which will be held in Goa in December. Twenty-two-year-old Chandra, who recently walked the ramp at the Lakme Fashion Week for designers Rahul and Firdos, is quick to clarify: "It's a regular show, where I will perform hot western numbers and Bollywood songs. I am not a participant and I am definitely not wearing a bikini." Perhaps the participants will be less inhibited.

Screen Shot

Singer Gayatri Ganjawala is all set to sizzle in a promotional item number for Vikram Bhatt's Mumbai Sa/sa, which she has also sung. This is the first time the IIM graduate will feature in a music video. Is singer-husband Kunal happy with this new image? "He's certainly happy with the trend of singers being seen and heard," says the 27-year-old. If singers are as easy on the eye as Ganjawala is, we don't mind.

Spirit of Rock

Himesh Reshammiya will probably regret he did this. A "superb, awesome, fantastic" product of the singer's Rock gharana in SaReGaMaPa Challenge 2007, Aneek Dhar is all set to give the nasal star a run for his money. "I couldn't believe my ears when the result was announced. I want to sing and act like my guru," says the 18-year-old, who takes home Rs 50 lakh and a contract with Zee TV for an album. As they say, the winner takes it all.

HIT AND MISS

Tamil film director Samy seems to have taken the title of his film Mirugam (animal) seriously. Shooting in a village near Madurai, the director slapped actor Padmapriya in full view of the unit and the gawking public. The actor has lodged a complaint with the Nadigar Sangam, which has banned further shooting of the film. But Samy isn't backing off. He has lodged a counter-complaint saying Padmapriya is extremely moody. The score? 1-1.
