MANAGING TOMORROW

S E R I E S

In less than a decade, global warming has gone from being a scientific curiosity to the most important challenge facing corporations around the world. Investors, researchers and other stakeholders are demanding that corporations not just assess, but also report the impact of climate change on their financials and businesses. What, then, are corporations doing to respond to climate change? How can High Performance Computing help them prepare a strategy to deal with climate change?

NEC Presents the Business Today Managing Tomorrow Series.

Hear a high-powered panel discuss and deliberate on the theme 'Climate Change & the Corporation' and take part in an interactive session that will follow the discussion. Entry by Invitation only.

Date: October 31, 2007, New Delhi
