

STAR TREK

With the earth as the backdrop, Indo-American astronaut Sunita Williams takes a walk in space outside the International Space Station. After making her way aboard in NASA's Discovery shuttle, 42-year-old Williams remained in space for 195 days, a record for a woman. Otherwise a pilot in the US Navy, the record-breaker visited her father's village Jhulasan in Gujarat in late 2007 and then toured India to a rapturous reception.
