

Ugly Reality

Nach Baliye 3 has showed that there is nothing real about reality television shows ("Nothing Real About It", January 7). Such shows, where hard work and dedication do not have any importance, are disheartening. I appreciate Rakhi Sawant for her guts to stand against such injustice. SINU SUGATHAN, on e-mail

Hidden Facts

It was surprising that the article on Russian women failed to highlight the fact that apart from being dancers and nurses, these blonde beauties with blue eyes are also sometimes involved in prostitution ("From Russia with Long Legs", January 7). BENZE KABIR, Delhi

A Ride through Time

The special issue, especially the pieces on the green and the white revolution, made for an interesting read ("60 Revolutions", December 31). Together, the two have helped our rural economy prosper. PRASAD MALLADI, on e-mail

These 60 years have been a fascinating journey in the ship of democracy, navigating through rapid currents and treacherous hidden rocks, trying to keep steady and never capsizing, much to the world's astonishment. H.R. BAPU SATYANARAYANA, Mysore

To identify revolutionary events like Gita Press and Nirodh, which had a microscopic beginning, is more difficult than to single out major occurrences. Hats off to the magazine's pain-taking research. Y.G. CHOUKSEY, Pune

Communist Doublespeak

Using flowery language to criticise someone like Prakash Karat is like punching wearing velvet gloves ("Hindsight Afterthought", December 31). Instead of playing with words, the magazine should have called him a liar straight away. JITINDER K. BAHL, on e-mail

Turning Karat-wheels

The magazine has done a great job in "exposing" Karat's true colours ("Full Marx", December 24). But his archetypal description may end up giving him more credit than the writers expected. All Marxists should keep the issue of INDIA TODAY with them to review the performance of their party by reversing the meaning of the sentences in the article. T. PRATAP REDDY, Guntur

SAFFRON HUES OF GUJARAT

Narendra Modi's victory is the triumph of 5.5 crore Gujaratis whose self-respect was hurt by the adverse propaganda ("The Modi Method", January 7).

RAMESH AGARWAL, Kanpur

Modi's third term is an indication of the confidence the people have in BJP.

K.V. RAGHURAM, Wayanad

It seems the media is yet to come to terms with Modi's victory despite adverse publicity. It should understand that the people have minds of their own.

ANIL DESAI, Pune

Projecting the minority as a common enemy is a sure shot way of winning over the majority community. Congress has not failed; communalism has won.

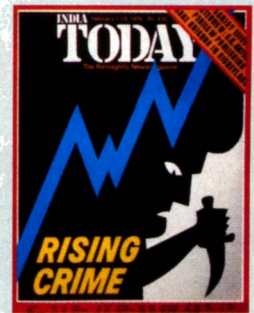

NIRMALA ASOKAN, Cuddalore

Readers are recommended to make appropriate enquiries before sending money, incurring expenses or entering into commitments in relation to any advertisement appearing in this publication. The India Today Group does not vouch for any claims made by the advertisers of products and services. The printer, publisher, editor-in-chief and the editor of the India Today Group publications shall not be held liable for any consequences in the event of such claims not being honoured by the advertisers.

e-mail your letters to: letters.editor@intoday.com or fax them to: 011-23316180

30

Years Ago in India Today
FEBRUARY 1-15, 1978

Playing With Constitution

As the Republic turned into its 28th year, reversal of the cynical assault on the Constitution during the Emergency looked not only possible but also certain at the coming budget session, as prime minister Morarji Desai told his press conference on January 12. The Janata Party, which ended 30 years of Congress power

The Constitution monopoly last March, is pledged to reversing the 42nd Amendment in full, and providing safeguards against the misuse of the Emergency provisions in future. But it is yet to secure the requisite majority in the Rajya Sabha, still controlled by the Congress. The biennial elections to the Rajya Sabha in March might correct the distortions to some degree because the Janata Party gained power in six states and Congress-ruled states are electing new assemblies in February.

—Mohan Ram