Green Lipped Mussels: Nature's Answer to Arthritis

Arthritic disorders of one kind or another have always plagued mankind. Many people suffer from the aches and pains of damaged or inflamed joints. Some are just uncomfortable and some become crippled as a result of the disease that has been recognized since prehistoric times but understood in only the past few decades.

Nature's answer

As new scientific research uncovers

the mysteries of the Seas, the New Zealand Green Lipped Mussel (GLM), a shellfish found off the coast of New Zealand seems to contain the therapeutic agents needed to treat most arthritic problems.

Since its discovery in 1974, Green Lipped Mussel Extract (GLME) has now been subjected to more than thirty years of quality scientific research and proven in laboratory and clinical trials, to be effective in treating both rheumatoid and osteo forms of arthritis.

The benefit comes as relief from pain and improvement in general mobility. Usually the improvement in these conditions is gradual and progressive; it is also usually long lasting and not temporary. Normally, the first thing to be noticed is a reduction in pain, which is then followed by gradual improvement in grip strength, freedom of movement or other mobility. And that too without any adverse side effects of classical drug therapy.

GLME manufactured by Healtheries of New Zealand is now available in India through their Authorised representatives Perma Healthcare. The cost for this therapy of 1000mg/day comes to Rs 50/- per day for first three months, which can be later reduced to 500 mg/day, i.e. Rs 25/- per day.
