

Too little, too late

By the time the National Disaster Management Authority personnel (seen here rescuing stranded villagers) were called the situation had already gone out of control. There was a shortage of boats to ply stranded and the cries of help from many villages went unheard.

The Shortfall:
BOATS

Total boats
available so far

1,391

Needed now

5,000