Playing the Field

While the team struggles to recover from the recent humiliating defeat at the hands of Sri Lanka, our heroes back home are doing what they do best—getting in front of the camera.

M.S. Dhoni and Yuvraj Singh will soon be getting onstage next week with the reality show Chak De Bachche, where they will be shaking a leg with the enthusiastic kids. And master blaster Sachin Tendulkar, while taking a break from his advertisements, has agreed to do a cameo in Vighnaharta Shri Siddhivinayak, a film about the miracles of Lord Ganesh. Hit or miss? You decide.

THAT'S A STARLING

So what if Imran Khan and Genelia D'Souza hogged the headlines for Jaane Tu Ya Jaane Na...? Manjari Fadnis, the girl who played Khan's temporary love interest in the film, is also taking in the success. The actress, who made her debut with Rok Sako To Rok Lo, will be seen in Saurabh Shukla's I'm 24 and has also signed a few films down south. Fadnis will also appear in a music video for a Sufi song by Krishna, who sang Maula mere from Chak De! India. What's that? The sweet smell of success.

Real Time Drama

As a reaction to Rajnikant's comments, where he berated Karnataka for its stand on the Hoggenakkal water dispute, the pro-Kannadiga activist group, Karnataka Rakshana Vedike, is opposing the release of his latest film Kuselan, even as distributors are ready with 500 prints for its release. It has prompted the superstar to apologise to the people of Karnataka if he "has hurt their sentiments". Business definitely comes first.

FEAR FACTOR

The spine-chilling scenes of a little girl possessed in The Exorcist left movie-goers shaken. And 10-year-old Ahsaas Channa seems to be following in those footsteps. Channa plays the possessed daughter of the main protagonists in Ram Gopal Varma's black magic fest, Phoonk. "Ahsaas had worked with us in Vastu Shastra where she played Sushmita Sen's son. She fit the role perfectly," says Varma. Will she manage to spook the daylights out of the audience?
