

Samsung strengthens its Olympic initiative in the country

Worldwide Olympic Partner and Sponsor of the Indian contingent to the Beijing Olympic Games 2008 is seeking to strengthen the Olympic movement in the country by trying to build support for the Olympic Games within the student community. The Company has organized the biggest ever national Quiz for school children titled 'Samsung Olympic Games Quest' across the four cities of Delhi, Mumbai, Kolkata and Bangalore, with the National Finals being held at New Delhi. The Samsung Olympic Quest is being carried out in the four cities between July 22nd - August 5th. Samsung has announced mega prizes for the regional contest winners as well as the National Finals. Exciting prizes to be won by the regional and national winners include top of the line Samsung products ranging from Digital camcorders, LCD Monitors, DVD Players and MP3 Players.

States Mr H.B Lee, President & CEO, Samsung South West Asia Regional Head Quarters, "As the Worldwide Olympic Partner for the forthcoming Olympic Games, we are seeking to strengthen the Olympic movement in India by organizing the Samsung Olympic Games Quest in India. We believe that this national level Quiz will provide the participating children an opportunity to learn and develop more interest in Olympics and at the same time build more support for the Indian team to the Olympic Games." The Samsung Olympic Quest is getting a phenomenal response from schools, with over 5000 schools having participated in the Samsung Olympic Games Quests by the end of the National Finals in Delhi.

Samsung India's commitment to the Olympic movement in India has grown over the Years. For the Beijing Olympics, the Company has a 'Samsung Olympic Ratna program' whereby it is supporting top 6 Indian athletes through a scholarship program towards their preparation for the Olympics. The six athletes who are being supported by Samsung include, Ace shooters Manavjit Singh Sandhu, Anjali Bhagwat, Avneet Kaur Sidhu, Abhinav Bindra; Archer Dola Banerjee and Boxer, Anthresh Lalit Lakra. The Company also has Manavjit Singh Sandhu as its Brand Ambassador for the Olympics and he has been spearheading the Company's Olympic Campaign over the past year.

Samsung India has also announced the Samsung 'Most Valued Performance' Awards for medal winning individual performances at the Beijing Olympic Games 2008. As part of the Samsung MVP program, Samsung India will give a cash reward of Rs. 20 lacs for the Gold Medal Winner/s at the Beijing Olympics. Rs. 15 lacs will be awarded to the Silver Medalist/s and Rs. 10 lacs for the Bronze Medal winner/s at the Beijing Olympics. "This incentive program is a manifestation of our support and encouragement to the Indian team and should provide a good motivation to our Indian team members to come back with a richer medal tally." states Mr R Zutshi, Dy Managing Director, Samsung India.

Samsung Electronics, the parent Company of Samsung India, has been the Olympic Partner in the wireless communications equipment category since 1997. SAMSUNG India's association with the Indian Olympic Association commenced with the 1998 Bangkok Asian Games and ever since the Company has supported the Indian Contingent to the Y2000 Sydney Olympics, Y2002 Busan Asian Games, the Y2004 Athens Olympics and now the 2008 Beijing Olympics.

WORLDWIDE OLYMPIC PARTNER