

IS A WORLD OF REVOLUTIONARY FANTASIES AND ARMED STRUGGLE, INDOCTRINATION AND
THE HEART OF MAOIST INSURGENCY THAT POSES THE BIGGEST THREAT TO INTERNAL SECURITY.

■ By Satarupa Bhattacharjya in Dantewada

Ondravati is a placid river that flows through south Chhattisgarh, originating from Orissa as a tributary of the Godavari. Many kilometres from Dantewada town, in the Abujmarh region, the river becomes a border—on one side is the waning presence of the BJP Government, while in the forests across the Indravati, the CPI (Maoist) reigns supreme. Welcome to the citadel of a revolutionary fantasy in which the enemy is the Indian State. Away from national consciousness, in the remoteness of dispossession, the army of outlaws are at war and the victims are multiplying. The Maoist bloodlust is the biggest threat to the internal security of a stoic India. For, this stream of communism which Lenin

PARALLEL ARMY: Cadres at the CPI (Maoist) unity
congress in January 2007