

NOT SO SPORTY

Tennis champ Sania Mirza's off court controversies are taking a toll on her volleys. While pulling out of the WTA Bangalore Open in March, the 21-year-old announced that her management company Globosport has advised her against playing in home tennis tournaments for now. Her mixed doubles partner and managing director of Globosport India, Mahesh Bhupathi says, "She will play again in India when she is ready and there is no media blitz focused on controversy around her." Disadvantage, Mirza?

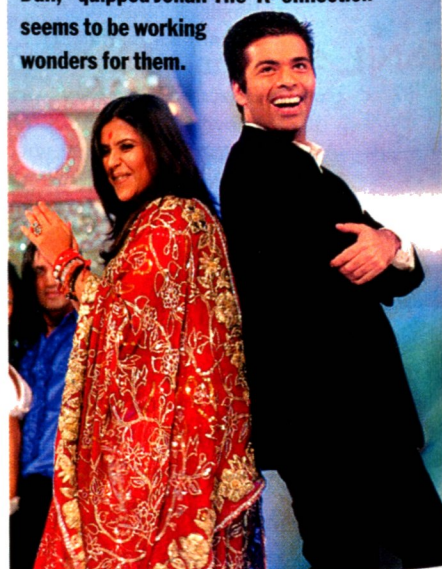

Scam Buster

Manzil Saini may be no James Bond, but the additional superintendent of police, Moradabad, has achieved a feat of super spy proportions. She led the raid on Gurgaon's kidney kingpin Amit Kumar following a tip off last month. "Raids are routine" for this former student of St Stephen's College and best woman athlete of 2005 at the National Police Academy. "But this one was not a typical ipc crime," says the mother of two, married to a businessman. Kudos, we say.

K for Kool

Their mutual admiration society was on full view at Ekta Kapoor's Global Indian TV Honours when filmmaker Karan Johar was not only given an award, but the two even shook a leg to Rock 'n roll soniye. During a Koffee with Karan spoof, Kapoor asked: "If you roped in all the Khans of Bollywood for a serial, what title will you give it?" "Khan-Dan," quipped Johar. The 'K'-connection seems to be working wonders for them.

DADDY'S GIRL

Just 17, she has already sung a sizzling item number for Mallika Sherawat. Anmol, daughter of music composer Anu Malik, has lent her voice to a song in the film Ugly Aur Pagli. "Mallika called me to say she loved the song and had no idea Anmol was my daughter," says Malik. And despite having a composer for a father, her initiation into the music industry is going to be slow. "She will complete her studies first," adds Malik. Can we hear the young crooner sing 'Papa don't preach'?
