CURTAIN CALL

Theatre and not films seems to have become the favoured medium of television stars. Moulli Ganguly, better known as Shaina of Kahin Kissi Roz, has been missing from the small screen and is now making her stage debut. "It's a medium I'm not familiar with and it'll give me a chance to overcome my inhibitions about performing in front of so many people," says the 26-year-old, who will play Kiran Karmarkar's wife in the comedy Kahaani Mein Twist. The actor, who was last seen on Star One's Resham Dankh, took a break from television because the stories and roles "weren't challenging and exciting enough". Let the curtain be drawn then.

Stitch Tale

She's the face of Maharashtra tourism and now model Mugdha Godse is all set for her Bollywood debut and how. The pretty actor will play the role of a super-model in Madhur Bhandarkar's Fashion with scenes reminiscent of Carol Gracias's famous

"wardrobe malfunction". "It's a hard-hitting performance-oriented role which tracks the journey of a model," says the 23-year-old. As for the malfunction, it could still happen without being there in the script.

Son Shine

Fathers Ram Vilas Paswan and Lalu Prasad Yadav may be busy slogging in the badlands of Bihar, but their sons Chirag Paswan (extreme left) and Tejaswi Yadav have minds of their own. "I do not intend to join politics," says Chirag who prefers the glamour of the tinsel town to his dad's Chemicals and Fertilisers Ministry. He has signed a film for producer Anuj Saxena, who coincidentally, heads a pharmaceutical company. Tejaswi, meanwhile, might be heading to the Indian cricket team. Game for something different?

MARTIAL QUEEN

Here's an actor who packs a mean punch. She's a model, a compere, and a Bollywood hottie who made her debut in M.F. Husain's Meenaxi: A Tale of Two Cities. And now, Sandhya Shetty, a karate brown belt, is on her way to representing Maharashtra at the Karate National Championship to be held later this month. "I won two golds at the state level and if I qualify, I will get to represent India," says the 30-year-old. Besides hoping to win a gold at the event, the actor is awaiting the release of Kaal, a Bangla film. Way to go, girl.
